the score, Perring hit to Kill.fer, who fielded to Henry in time to retire Perring. Ordinarily a run would be scored on such a play but so fast did Henry handle the ball that he caught Stovall between third and home, completing a double play and, temporarily, saving the Nationals.

In the ninth the big collegian became somewhat rattled, when, with two on, a bunt was shoved at him and he did not field it in time to get the runner. This, however, had no direct effect on the final outcome.

Henry was applauded every time he came to the bat in both games.

the Chicago White Sox.

Up until the ninth inning Young had allowed the Nationals but a lone single and that was Beckendorf, whose batting, since coming here, has been as weak as a shadow. However, a base on balls and two infield errors, coupled with an cut, enabled Milan to cross the plate in the first lining.

Up to the beginning of the ninth this gift run kept Washington in the van and it appeared as though the big fellow would have to want longer before the 500 mark was reached.

In the last regulation round, however, the Naps came to the rescue of their pitcher and scored twice only to have the Nationals tie it up in the second half.

After this Reisling, who has pitched an excellent game, gave way to Groom and in the eleventh the fireworks exploded, for Groom suddenly became so wild that he passed three men and allowed two hits that put Cleveland two runs to the good.

Groom was wild and so were the fans, although it is doubtful if anyone in the park begrudged Cy his hard earned record.

park begrudged Cy his hard earned record.

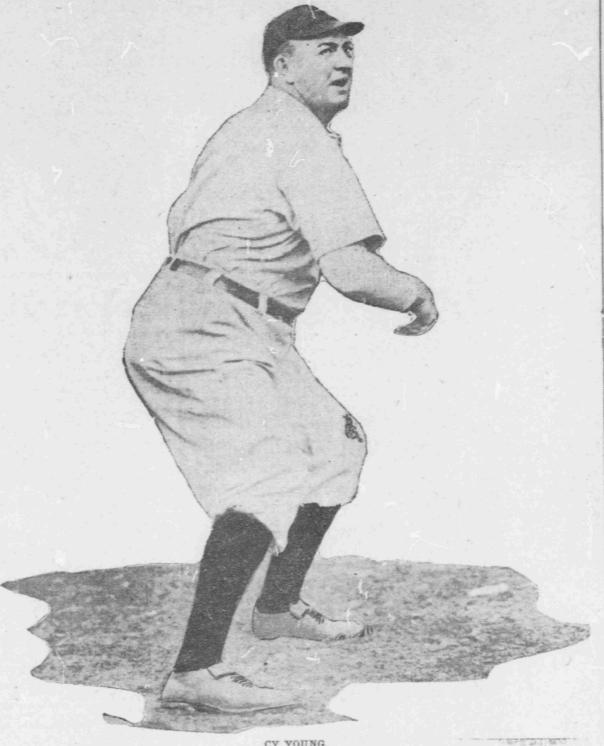

In the first game the Nationals simply toyed with the Naps, winning 7 to 6. It was really the excellent pitching of "Dolly" Gray that made the visitors look so poor. Gray had everything and when the hits were tallied Cleveland had but four which were widely scattered. Young Harkness, the Pacific Coast product, who has been doing good work since he came East, fell by the wayside yesterday and was hammered so persistently that Falkenberg was substituted, but too late to save the day.

Besides the mark set by Young, National Park yesterday was the scene of an unprecedented incident when "Doc" Gessler's bat slipped from his hands in the first game and went flying through the air, over the top of he Washington bench and beyond half a dozen rows of seats in the grandstand. Finally if was stooped by a spectator, but only after it had narrowly missed several persons.

The prettiest individual play of the day, in the line of fielding, was made in the fifth inning of the second game by John Henry.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY

Battled for Reisling in the single content of last March, Denton T. Young is by all odds the wonder of wonders and marvel of marvels in the whole realm of baseball. Since he came into the major leagues in 1859 great pitchers have gone, but, like Tennyson's brook. Cy seems and great pitchers have gone, but, like Tennyson's brook. Cy seems all starting that the veteran was not just as good as on the afternoon in 1904, when the shift of making the absolute shut-out mark six years ago, it is doubtful if the grand old man came of a baseball derived any more satisfaction out of that record of masses—Washington, 6; Cleveland, 5. First base on roros—Cleveland, 3. Left of making the absolute shut-out mark six years ago, it is doubtful if the grand old man changed by thoroughly proud of masses—Washington, 6; Cleveland, 5.
